Fraser Boa (1932-1992) was a Canadian Jungian analyst, writer, and filmmaker. In the early 1980s, Boa filmed people willing to recount their dreams on camera. Then, he took these accounts to renowned Jungian analyst and author, Marie-Louise von Franz, and filmed her as she offered her interpretations. The result of these interviews is an extraordinary 10-hour series of conversations that demonstrates the "art and science" of dream analysis for the general public. According to von Franz, one of the healthiest things people can do is to pay attention to their dreams: "Dreams show us how to find a meaning in our lives, how to fulfill our own destiny, how to realize the greater potential of life within us."
